Total Transit CEO Receives Entrepreneur of the Year Award From Alma Mater University of Arkansas honors Craig Hughes for 'business leadership and accomplishments'

PHOENIX (April 17, 2013)—The Sam M. Walton College of Business at the University of Arkansas will honor alumnus Craig Hughes, CEO of Total Transit, on Thursday, April 18, with its Entrepreneur of the Year award.

Hughes is one of three Walton alumni to be honored at Thursday's awards banquet, which will also recognize recipients of the business school's Outstanding Service Award and Lifetime Achievement Award.

"To say I'm proud and humbled to receive an entrepreneurial award from my alma mater—where I learned everything about running a successful business—is an understatement," Hughes said. "I am a proud Razorback and owe a lot of my success as a businessman to the University of Arkansas."

Hughes and his wife Christine founded Total Transit in 1984 with a small fleet of 15 cars. Today, Total Transit boasts the busiest taxi dispatch center in the country with more than 11,000 calls dispatched each day and the largest hybrid cab fleet in North America.
